

Show Some Skin: Who Matters

Write about a time you felt like you mattered and a time you felt like you did not?

What spaces and traditions on campus and beyond, make you feel valued or excluded?

When was a time you felt silenced and when were you empowered to speak out?

When have you stepped in as an ally? When did you choose not to be an ally? Why did you make that decision?

Last year we asked you to tell us more. Yet, there are identities, stories and experiences that are privileged more than others. This year we are inviting stories that help us reflect on who matters.

Your stories are not limited to the prompts above. Dig deeper and tell us more about your experiences. Not just who, what, when, and where--but remember to wonder why. This may take you to unexpected places.
